A healthy communication builds affection, enhances intimacy and strengthens the bonding between couples. This is the foundation that helps couples navigate changes they face in their life effectively. It enables them to resolve disagreements maturely, make decisions effectively, balance relationships with family members and continue supporting each other through this. It also helps them cope with changes in our socio-cultural environment and the day to day demands of life that add stress to any relationship.

These weekend interactions aim at sharing professional knowledge and enhancing relationship skills of partners to further and deepen their bonding and satisfaction with each other.
